VAX EFFICACY WANING AS MORE VACCINATED PEOPLE NOW DIE FROM COVID

Team Absolute | New Delhi

The Covid virus has changed and immunity from previous Covid-19 vaccination has waned, putting the health of even the double-vaccinated people at great risk.

There are several factors, including waning immune protection and low uptake of boosters, along with changes in immunity among the unvaccinated.

FDA Commissioner Robert M. Califf said last week that the more people who keep up to date on Covid-19 vaccinations, "the more benefit there will be for individuals, families and public health by helping prevent severe illnesses, hospitalisations and deaths."

The advice came as a Washington Post analysis last month found that more vaccinated people are now dying of the Covid disease and 58 per cent of coronavirus deaths in August in the US "were people who were vaccinated or boosted".

The report added: "In September 2021, vaccinated people made up just 23 per cent of coronavirus fatalities.

In January and February this year, it was up to 42 per cent."

Deaths among vaccinated people is increasing due to waning efficacy of Covid vaccines and "increasingly contagious strains of the virus being spread to elderly and immunocompromised people" among those who have taken at least one vaccine dose.

"We can no longer say this is a pandemic of the unvaccinated," said Kaiser Family Foundation vice president Cynthia Cox, who conducted the analysis on behalf of the Washington Post.

Although some researchers, like Dr David Weber, an infectious disease specialist at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine, said "it's a true but inaccurate statement". Dr Weber added: "It would be like saying most deaths in car crashes come with people wearing seat belts. That's because almost everyone wears seat belts. The correct statement is, how many lives do seat belts save? And that would be the correct statement for the vaccines." He was quoted by www.cbs17.com.

Outgoing White House Chief Medical Adviser, Anthony Fauci has emphasised the safety and efficacy of the approved Covid vaccines in preventing severe illness and deaths, encouraging people to get vaccinated and boosted as soon as possible.

"My message, and my final message, maybe the final message I give you from this podium, is that please, for your own safety, for that of your family, get your updated Covid-19 shot as soon as you're eligible to protect yourself, your family and your community," Fauci said.

Older people were always especially vulnerable and now make up a higher proportion of Covid fatalities than ever before in the pandemic, reports Scientific American.

The World Health Organization (WHO) reported a nearly 90 per cent drop in recent Covid-19 deaths globally compared to nine months ago, but still urged vigilance against the pandemic as new variants continue to rise.

CBDT issues circular on TDS on salaries for current fiscal

Team Absolute | New Delhi

The Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT) in a circular related to TDS deduction from salaries has said that any person responsible for paying salary must deduct income tax while paying the amount.

The circular said that the tax should be deducted at the average rate calculated, based on the rates in force for the current financial year, on the estimated salary income of the recipient for that year.

The circular was issued last week by CBDT.

The circular basically explains the obligation of employers with regard to the deduction of tax at source from salaries under section 192 of the Income-tax Act, 1961 for Financial Year 2022-23.

As per Section 192, the person responsible for paying salary income must provide the recipient with a statement giving correct and complete particulars of perquisites or profits in lieu of salary provided to him and the value thereof.

Twitter back to life after brief outage as Musk speeds up platform

Team Absolute | New Delhi

Twitter came back to life after suffering a brief outage globally, including in India, on Sunday as Elon Musk said "Twitter is speeding up".

Website outage tracker Downdetector reported several outages across the globe as users had issues with page loading.

The outage hit both the Twitter mobile app and the desktop version. "Yes, Twitter is Down for some people. Not Working on Jio But Working on Airtel," tweeted one user.

"Elon musk try to fix twitter when twitter is down," another posted. Twitter or Musk were yet to comment on what caused the outage.

This was the second time when Twitter went down under its new CEO. The microblogging platform was down for several hours earlier last month. Meanwhile, Musk said that Twitter Files on the company's approach to handle Covid misinformation are coming soon. "It is coming big time," said Musk. He also revealed that Twitter is set to increase the character limit from 280 to 4,000. "The bots/trolls generate fake activity, so Twitter may seem a little less lively, but actually it's just that the fakery is gone," he tweeted.

Russia offers to help India overcome crude price cap: Reports

Team Absolute | New Delhi

Russia is said to have offered to help India overcome the oil price cap, which has been imposed by Western nations on the world's largest country.

"In order not to depend on the ban on insurance services and tanker chartering in the European Union and Britain, Deputy Prime Minister of Russia Alexander Novak has offered India cooperation on leasing and building large-capacity ships," reports quoting the Russian embassy in New Delhi said.

Novak met Indian Ambassador to Moscow Pavan Kapoor on Friday, after the statement. "In the first eight months of 2022,

Russian oil exports to India grew to 16.35 million tonnes in the summer, Russia ranked second in terms of oil shipments to India," it added. The G7 nations, the European Union (EU) and Australia last week agreed to a $60 per barrel price cap on Russian seaborne crude oil, as part of its sanctions on Russia, owing to its invasion of Ukraine.

Western nations have not warmed up to India's stance of continuing to buy oil from Russia despite its war with Ukraine.

India, on its part, has made it clear that it will continue to buy crude oil from any country, which offers it a good deal.

External Affairs Minister S. Jaishankar had echoed these sentiments in Parliament on December 7, saying that the government has not asked oil marketing companies to buy Russian crude, however it is a sensible policy, keeping in mind the interest of people.

Nitish reveals the two people on whose advice he broke alliance with BJP

Patna | Agencies

Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar on Sunday revealed that he had broken alliance with the BJP on the advice of two persons - JD-U national President Lalan Singh and cabinet minister Bijendra Yadav.

"When the things went wrong while we were in NDA, Lalan Singh and Bijendra Yadav suggested to me to break the alliance. We have taken the suggestions from our party workers from the entire country and they have suggested that I break the alliance with BJP and go with the seven party alliance to form the government," he said, while addressing the gathering of JD-U workers on the second day of the open session of the party in Sri Krishna Memorial Hall at the Gandhi Maidan.

"Now, we have a seven party government in Bihar and we will jointly develop the state. Lalan Singh is the national President of the party and I ask all of you to support him," Nitish Kumar said.

Nitish Kumar's statement came soon after the defeat of his candidate in Kurhani bypoll, and its timing is important for the RJD and other parties from the Mahagathbandhan's point of view.

The JD-U candidate lost despite having support of 7 parties and political pundits believe that is why Nitish Kumar made such a statement three months after the formation of the Mahagathbandhan government in Bihar. There is buzz that Nitish Kumar wants to open the gate of dialogue with the BJP by blaming Lalan Singh and Bijendra Yadav for breaking the NDA in Bihar.

After the formation of a new government in Bihar, the Mahagathbandhan contested three bypolls and lost two, and Nitish Kumar may not be pleased with its performance. The Nitish Kumar-led government is also facing criticism of rising incidents of crime and he may not want that his government gets a tag of letting "Jungle Raj" return to Bihar.

Pollution, changing weather making kids below 5 vulnerable to pneumonia

- ▶ Most children below the age of five face difficulty in breathing and drinking milk due to pneumonia.
- ▶ They are susceptible to various other problems like fever, ear infection, diarrhoea and measles which is a highly contagious disease caused by measles virus.
- ▶ Vaccination is highly effective in preventing measles.

Pawan Tripathi | Noida

Be it children, the elderly or the young, everyone's health is getting affected these days. Common cold, which usually got cured within three to five days, now takes longer to cure.

Due to increasing pollution, the amount of people reaching hospitals complaining of difficulty in breathing has increased by about 15 per cent.

Vaishnavi, a resident of Noida's Sector 93, said that her 7-year-old son has been sick with cold, and faces difficulty in breathing since the past few months. She added that they visited several doctors who prescribed different medicines but to no avail.

Children are falling prey to pneumonia due to increase in cold and pollution. Those who have not been vaccinated are at a greater risk of falling ill. Pediatrician Dr D.K. Gupta said that children suffering from pneumonia are being admitted in the OPD and that identification of its symptoms in time can ensure treatment to save them. Gupta said that children need special care in the winter season as they are at a larger risk of pneumonia.

He suggested that some preventive measures that can be taken to ensure children's safety are to keep them fully clothed and to keep their ears covered to protect them from cold. He added that wheezing in the chest can be a sign of pneumonia in children. Droplets spread in the air when an infected person coughs or sneezes. When a healthy person breathes them in, they become infected. Regular vaccination of children was affected during the pandemic which resulted in their course of vaccine remaining uncompleted. Lung infection is caused by bacteria, virus and fungal infection. Cold, on the other hand, is a type of allergy, which results in a runny nose and mucus in the throat.

Delhi liquor case: CBI questions Kavitha for over 7 hours

Hyderabad | Agencies

The Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) questioned Telangana Chief Minister K. Chandrasekhar Rao's daughter K. Kavitha in Delhi liquor scam case for more than seven hours at her residence in Hyderabad.

A team of CBI officials examined the Member of Legislative Council (MLC) of the Bharat Rashtira Samithi (BRS) at her Banjara Hills residence about the facts she may be acquainted with in the case.

The officials, including a woman, arrived in two vehicles amid tight security around 11 a.m. and the questioning started soon after.

The CBI recorded Kavitha's statement under Section 160 of Criminal Procedure Code.

The central agency team left the place after 6 p.m. There was no official word about the questioning. Kavitha's office is likely to issue a statement.

The surroundings of Kavitha's house were deserted before the arrival of the CBI officials as she had requested her supporters and BRS leaders and workers not to gather there. Barricades were erected to prevent any gathering. BRS sources said this was done as a gathering might be seen as an attempt to create hurdles in the CBI investigation.

The CBI, in its notice to Kavitha, had mentioned that the case was registered on the basis of written complaint received from Praveen Kumar Rai, Director in the Union Home Ministry against Delhi Deputy Chief Minister of Delhi, Manish Sisodia and 14 others regarding the allegations pertaining to excise policy of Delhi for 2021-22.

"During the course of investigation of the subject cited case, certain facts have emerged which you may be acquainted with, hence your examination on such facts is required in the interest of investigation," reads the CBI notice. On November 30, Kavitha's name had surfaced in the remand report filed by the ED in a Delhi court on Wednesday for remand of businessman Amit Arora in Delhi liquor policy scam. According to the remand report, businessman Vijay Nair, who has already been arrested in the case, received kickbacks of

Rs 100 crore on behalf of AAP leaders from a group, called 'South Group', controlled by Sarath Reddy, Kavitha and Magunta Srinivasulu Reddy.

Sarath Reddy, one of the directors of pharma major Aurobindo Pharma, has already been arrested.

Srinivasulu Reddy is a member of Parliament belonging to Andhra Pradesh's ruling YSR Congress Party (YSRCP). Kavitha had initially agreed to the CBI's request to meet them on December 6. However, she later wrote a letter to the agency seeking copies of the complaint from the Union Home Ministry and the FIR. In reply, the CBI informed her that a copy of FIR and complaint is available on the website. Kavitha, in her response on December 5, conveyed to the central agency that she had carefully gone through the content of the FIR, list of accused persons as well as the contents of the complaint but found that her name does not figure in any manner whatsoever. She had conveyed to the central agency that she is not in a position to meet them on December 6 and proposed alternate dates.

The CBI informed Kavitha on December 6 that a team will visit her residence in Hyderabad on December 11 for her examination and recording of her statement in connection with the investigation in the case. The central agency has asked her to confirm availability on the said date and time. Kavitha sent a reply the same day confirming her availability on the day.

Cannons dug out by Navy in Kolkata could be over two centuries old

Kolkata | Agencies

The Indian Navy may have dug up cannons nearly 250-year-old from the Hooghly riverbank in Kolkata. Two of these cannons are presently on display at INS Netaji Subhas, the Navy office in the city. Two more will be mounted soon while the fifth is still in the process of being dug out. "We have acquired some land near Dahi Ghat in the city. While excavating the riverbank there, we found the five cannons. It is possible that a ship-building facility existed there. It seems that the cannons were meant to be mounted on ships. We have not yet sought expert advice but these could be of World War I vintage or older," Captain Joydeep Chakraborty, Executive Officer, INS Netaji Subhas said.

According to experts on the subject, the cannons unearthed by the Navy predate World War I by at least a century. These are apparently from an era when armies and navies began standardising the dimensions and calibres of their artillery. The British seem to have begun this process in the early 18th Century.

"From the photographs published, it seems that the cannons are Armstrong Pattern ones. In 1725, John Armstrong, as British surveyor general of ordnance, developed a standard design cannon with specific dimensions. These cannons were robust without any decorations. Due to the specific dimensions, these cast iron 24-pounders could be built in any foundry," one of the experts said.

In 1794, the Armstrong pattern was replaced by Blomefield Pattern guns. The cannons unearthed at Dahi Ghat could also be of this pattern. Only experts on the subject can determine this after closer scrutiny. A few years ago, two similar pieces of artillery were found on the Hooghly riverbank on Strand Bank Road. After a bit of restoration and a fresh coat of paint, they are now mounted outside the Jorabagan Police station in Kolkata.

But how did these cannons reach the Hooghly riverbank? Historians say that they may have been set up there for shore defences. Sometimes, when British ships berthed along the shore, they brought down the cannons mounted on board and placed them on shore or even buried them to be retrieved later as and when required. As it is, ships entering Calcutta had to deposit their gunpowder at the Barood Ghar or magazine near Moyapur, Budge Budge so the cannons would be of no use anyway.

Man takes pregnant wife to hospital on vegetable cart in Bihar's Nalanda

Patna | Agencies

The reality of 'Mission 60' of Bihar health department was exposed in Chief Minister Nitish Kumar's home district Nalanda on Saturday when a pregnant woman reached the Sadar hospital on a vegetable cart.

The patient's husband Rajiv Prasad, a resident of Kamruddin Ganj locality of Bihar Sharif, called for an ambulance on Saturday after his wife came under labour pain.

"I repeatedly called the hospital on a toll free number for the ambulance but the employees refused to send the same. Eventually, I brought a vegetable cart to take her to Sadar hospital. After reaching the hospital, the employees did not give stature. Hence, I took the vegetable cart inside the emergency ward," Prasad said. Such a situation is common in Bihar where people carry the dead bodies on shoulder, bicycles after the government hospital refuses to provide ambulances. Keeping this in view, Tejashwi Yadav, the health minister of Bihar started Mission 60 to provide every district hospital with proper beds, stretchers, ambulance, oxygen cylinders, medicines, tests and other equipment free of cost to reduce the burden of medical hospitals of the state.

Police arrest Sharmila, taken to Hyderabad hospital

Hyderabad | Agencies

Hyderabad Police have arrested YSR Telangana Party (YSRTP) president Y.S. Sharmila, who was on indefinite fast, and shifted her to a hospital.

With the condition of Sharmila deteriorating, the police entered her residence at Lotus Pond in Jubilee Hills around 1 a.m. on Sunday and took her to Apollo Hospital.

Sharmila was on indefinite fast since Friday to protest against the denial of police permission for her Praja Sangram Padyatra.

YSRTP said Sharmila, who was on an indefinite fast since Friday morning, did not even consume water, which resulted in her health deteriorating rapidly.

Doctors from Apollo Hospital, who were earlier monitoring her health stated that Sharmila's blood pressure and glucose levels have fallen down to alarming levels, and expressed concern over dehydration which could lead to electrolyte imbalance, potent enough to pose danger to her kidneys. Telangana Police forced the media personnel, party leaders and cadres to move away from the location before she was forcefully shifted.

The YSRTP leader had earlier made it clear that she would continue her fast till the police gave permission for the padyatra.

Sharmila was detained by the police on Friday after she sat on the fast at Dr

Ambedkar's statue at Tank Bund in the heart of the city. She was dropped at her residence. She along with her supporters began the fast on a road near their residence. She was detained again and was forced to move into the house. The YSRTP leader then started her fast in the house. Her mother also joined her in solidarity.

PM MODI LAUNCHES INFRA PROJECTS WORTH RS 75K CRORE IN NAGPUR

Team Absolute | Nagpur

Prime Minister Narendra Modi launched infrastructure projects worth Rs 75,000 crore in Nagpur on Sunday and asserted that this has been "possible due to the efforts of the double engine government".

Prime Minister Modi, addressing a huge public gathering after inaugurating the ambitious Samruddhi Mahamarg connecting Nagpur and Shirdi, said that the development projects were "stalled but the new government took them up seriously and laid the roadmap for a prosperous state".

He called for a permanent solution with long-term vision for the overall development of the country.

The Prime Minister termed the outcome of Gujarat assembly elections as the victory of the present government's long-term vision to develop the country.

Ridiculing the Opposition, he cited the Hindi phrase - 'Aamdani Athani Kharcha Rupaiya', and said, "If this principle is followed in our politics, the consequences would be a bleak picture of the economy of the country. The country today does not believe in the concept of shortcuts. Voters know the implications of shortcuts and they also know what is good for them in the long run."

He also appealed to all to "expose" such parties and politicians who are "trying to damage the country's economy".

Prime Minister Modi virtually blamed the previous government for delaying the projects. Citing example of Inter-District Irrigation Project of Gosikhurd which was conceived for a mere Rs 400 crore, is "now worth Rs 18,000 crore due to inordinate delay of thirty years". The Central government upgraded it to a National Irrigation Project and funded it, he said. Referring to landslide victory in Gujarat, he said there are no shortcuts and there should be permanent stability for the development.

"Shortcut is not the way for development. Some people are indulging in shortcuts to achieve power. It is not a solution." Chief Minister Eknath Shinde described the Expressway (Samruddhi Mahamarg) as a game changer and green corridor where even wildlife movement has been taken care off.

Union Minister Nitin Gadkari said that he is "proud to be associated with the establishment of Maharashtra State Road Development Authority (MSRDC)" which was entrusted with the construction of the expressway.

Deputy Chief Minister Devendra Fadnis announced on the occasion that a plan is ready for laying the expressway from Nagpur to Goa via Marathwada and modernisation of Nagpur Airport in the immediate future. The Prime Minister will be invited within a month for Airport modernisation, he said.

Fadnis also thanked the Prime Minister Office for speedy disposal of files related to various projects in Maharashtra.

He further said that land has been kept reserved to lay railway lines for running semi-high speed freight trains from Nagpur to Mumbai which will reduce the time.

CENTRE, STATE GOVERNMENTS "HAVE KEPT MUM": AADITYA THACKERAY ON BORDER ROW

Team Absolute | Mumbai

Shiv Sena leader (Uddhav Balasaheb Thackeray) and former minister Aaditya Thackeray on Sunday targeted the Maharashtra government and the Centre over the ongoing Karnataka-Maharashtra border dispute.

He also accused the ruling Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) of failing to resolve the matter as the war of words over the status of the disputed interstate border in Belagavi continues between Maharashtra and Karnataka.

"Our vehicles (with Maharashtra registration) were vandalised at the Maharashtra-Karnataka border areas and people are being attacked, while the governments in both the states and the Centre have kept mum over the issue," alleged Aaditya.

He said that the BJP is in power in both Karnataka and Maharashtra as well as in the Centre, but it does not care to interfere and resolve the dispute. "From farmers and women to industries, everyone is bound to face a range of issues and problems because of this border dispute. There is no action taken by the Centre so far," he complained.

After the Karnataka-Maharashtra border dispute escalated, many untoward incidents took place in Belagavi, after which as a precautionary measure, police presence was tightened along the border, in Belagavi's Chikkodi. Belagavi is currently part of Karnataka but is claimed by Maharashtra. As per media reports, the long-running Karnataka-Maharashtra border dispute started in 1953, after the Maharashtra government objected to the inclusion of 865 villages, including Belagavi, in Karnataka.

The villages are spread across Belagavi and Karnataka's northwestern and north-eastern regions - all bordering Maharashtra. After the implementation of the State Reorganization Act, of 1956, the Maharashtra government demanding the readjustment of its border with Karnataka. Following this, a four-member committee was formed by both states. Maharashtra government had expressed willingness to transfer 260 predominantly Kannada-speaking 260 villages, but it was turned down by Karnataka.

Now, both Karnataka and Maharashtra governments have approached the Supreme Court to expedite the matter, and the matter is still pending.

Shiv Sena leader Aaditya Thackeray also targeted the ruling state government on pending transfer of IPS and IAS and said there is a long list of pendency of senior IPS officers' transfer.

"There is a clear interference from the MLAs. Officials in the municipal corporation and other departments are being transferred thrice, and around 70 people are transferred at once. While the transfer of several IPS and IAS officers is still pending. It's only because of internal politics and groupism," alleged Aaditya Thackeray.

He also targeted the ruling Eknath Shinde government on the recent incident in which a cab driver allegedly molested a woman in a moving car and threw her toddler out of the vehicle in Palghar district, and said that there is an increase in crime against women in the state. "We must respect women. We will not tolerate this," he added.

"I Changed My Shirt And Moved Ahead": Maharashtra Minister On Ink Attack

Team Absolute | Pune

Ink was thrown at BJP leader and Maharashtra cabinet minister Chandrakant Patil on Saturday in Pimpri Chinchwad city of Pune district over his alleged remark on Dr BR Ambedkar and Mahatma Jyotiba Phule.

A video showed that a man suddenly comes in front of Patil and throws ink at his face as the minister comes out from a building.

While addressing media persons after the incident, Patil said, "I went to distribute certificates at a university in Patthan in Devgiri district on completion of the course. They asked for more funds. Rs 12 crore is already given to them and they asked for more Rs 23 crore from the government. While sanctioning it, I said the government will surely give but you should try and collect funds from other sources. With due respect, I said that in Maharashtra, schools were started by Dr Babasaheb Ambedkar, Mahatma Phule and Maharshi Karve. When did I criticize Dr Ambedkar and Mahatma Phule? I said they did not wait for the government's financial aid but they begged (bheek) to start a school," he said. Giving clarification of what he meant by begging, the BJP leader said, "I come from 'dehat' (rural area), they have a problem with it. In 'dehat', even a mother says (to her child) after your father's death I begged to raise you. Does it mean she was standing with a begging bowl? When someone goes to the court and pleads to the judge for justice and says "I beg for justice", is it wrong? Is 'bheek' the wrong word?"

He said that Ambedkar and Phule did not seek government grants for educational institutions and started schools and you should also do the same. "What did I say wrong?" he asked.

Patil further said that the incident did not impact him. "Nothing can happen by splashing ink on my face. Doesn't impact me. I changed my shirt and moved ahead," he said. The Maharashtra minister further appealed to his party workers not to take law and order in hand while protesting and asked if they want to protest, then protest democratically.

He also urged Deputy Chief Minister Devendra Fadnis and Chief Minister Eknath Shinde to not to take any action against any police personnel and not to suspend them.

Kangana can't stop praising Musk as she trains guns on 'wokes'

Team Absolute | Mumbai

Bollywood actress Kangana Ranaut again heaped admiration on the new Twitter chief and second richest businessman in the world, Elon Musk, on Sunday.

The actress, who is currently busy with multiple projects in different stages of production, took to the story section of her Instagram on Sunday afternoon and posted a screenshot of Musk's tweet which showed morphed images of the old Twitter head Jack Dorsey and US President Joe Biden. The screenshot read, "Just one more lockdown my king".

Hitting at left-leaning liberals derogatorily referred to as 'wokes', Kangana wrote on the picture, "Elon alone stands against ruling government but gets no support from wokes, Wokes want you to believe that they are rebels who support an individual in a fight against the system/state." She then recalled the Bombay Municipal Corporation's action against her office and home in Mumbai when the Maharashtra Vikas Aghadi government led by Uddhav Thackeray was in power. The actress further wrote on the picture, "When I fought against Shiv Sena, wokes celebrated illegal demolition of my house. Wokes everywhere are the same dub and moronic." On the work front, Kangana has a bunch of projects on hand, including 'Emergency' directed by herself, 'Tejas' and 'Tiku Weds Sheru'.

GOA'S NEW AIRPORT NAMED AFTER MANOHAR PARRIKAR

Team Absolute | Panaji

Prime Minister Narendra Modi inaugurated the first phase of the international airport at Mopa in north Goa today. He named the airport after late Goa Chief Minister Manohar Parrikar. Mr Parrikar died in March 2019.

"The state-of-the-art airport in Mopa will significantly improve connectivity as well as boost tourism in Goa. Manohar Parrikar International Airport is proof of the changed government thinking and approach towards infrastructure in the country today. We took the initiative to take air travel to the smallest cities in the country," PM Modi said.

The airport at Mopa in north Goa, being built at a cost of Rs 2,870 crore, will be the second facility in the state in addition to the existing airport at Dabolim.

The airport will have the capacity to handle 44 lakh passengers a year in the first phase and it will go up to one crore passengers a year after the entire project is complete.

Dabolim airport has a capacity to handle 85 lakh passengers a year, but it does not have a facility for cargo transportation, which the new airport will have.

The new airport in Mopa will promote the local economy and be a major boost for tourism, as north Goa is already a popular tourist destination. Utpal Parrikar, the son of the late Chief Minister, earlier said it would be a "happy moment" if the airport was named after his father.

PM Modi laid the foundation stone of the airport in November 2016. GMR Goa International Airport Limited, in a series of tweets, said the facility will boost the socio-economic development of the state.

The company said 3-D monolithic precast technology has been used for the construction of aviation skill development centre and a police station.

"5G compatible IT infrastructure has been created for better connectivity," it said, adding there is option for self-baggage drop for faster check-in.

With Sukhu's elevation Congress tries to cull nepotism charge

With Sukhvinder Singh Sukhu taking oath as the Chief Minister in Himachal Pradesh, the Congress has tried to emerge out of the shadows of Virbhadra Singh's family that had been at the forefront in the party's state politics for decades. Sukhu's swearing-in ceremony was attended by senior Congress leaders including party chief Mallikarjun Kharge, Rahul Gandhi, Priyanka Gandhi Vadra. He said, "the government will try to fulfill all the promises made at earliest." The elevation of Sukhu is seen as the party's efforts to cull nepotism and the charge of promoting families. The newly sworn-in Himachal chief minister comes from a very humble beginning and has risen from the ranks. That is why the party chose Sukhu in place of Pratibha Singh, who is from the royal family and wife of Late Virbhadra Singh, said sources. With no political dynasty, but wide organisational experience, four-time Congress legislator Sukhvinder Singh Sukhu, 58, throughout his political career was not on the same page with the party's tallest leader Virbhadra Singh. Four-time legislator Mukesh Agnihotri, 60, took the oath of office as the Deputy Chief Minister at a ceremony that lasted less than 10 minutes. Both took the oath in Hindi. Anand Sharma in his tweet mentioned the humble beginning, "Congratulations to Sukhvinder Sukhu on becoming the next Chief Minister of Himachal Pradesh. Richly deserved recognition of his life long commitment to the Congress party and acknowledged contribution." Sharma said he was grateful that the party leadership had taken a democratic decision and chosen the one who has risen from the ranks.

SHEHBAZ SHARIF INSULTS POJK PM: LEGACY OF COLONIAL OCCUPATION

On Monday, Pakistan Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif and Pakistan occupied Jammu & Kashmir (PoJK) premier Tanveer Ilyas got into a verbal spat in Mirpur at an event which was held to mark the completion of refurbishment of Units 5 and 6 of the Mangla Dam hydroelectric power plant.

Dr Amjad Ayub Mirza

Ilyas interrupted Sharif's speech complaining that the latter did not mention about the sacrifices of the people of Mirpur who had been displaced to give land for the construction of Mangla Dam in 1965. After concluding his speech, Sharif left the venue in a hurry and when Ilyas tried to get close to him he was manhandled and pushed by the Pakistan Prime Minister's security personal. This has led to widespread protests all over PoJK. During the early hours of morning on December 6 youth from Jammu & Kashmir Students Lives Matter (JKSLM) began to gather outside the Central Press club in Muzaffarabad. At around 11 a.m., JKSLM students started raising slogans against Sharif demanding an apology for his 'colonial' behaviour. By around 1 p.m. large crowds of civil society members as well as Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf workers arrived at the Central Press Club and set tires on fire. At about the same time protests of similar nature began to spread across PoJK. Ilyas held a press conference in which he accused his Pakistani counterpart of being irritable and irrational claiming that Sharif "did not even put in a good word for the people of Mirpur who had submerged the graves of their near and dear ones twice for the construction and raising of Mangla dam... instead of offering anything he made announcements for development projects in (Khyber Paktunkhwa)". This is not the first time that a head of state of PoJK has been snubbed of given a shut up call by a Pakistani head of state. Sardar Ibrahim, the first president of PoJK, was also arrested in 1950s on charges of treason. During the 1960s when the land in Mirpur was being marked for the construction of Mangla dam the then military dictator of Pakistan General Ayub Khan and PoJK president K.H. Khurshid surveyed Mirpur during a helicopter ride. Khurshid asked General Ayub Khan if it was possible to shift the construction site away from Mirpur to save the most fertile land in the region. Ayub Khan told the PoJK president to mind his own business. Khurshid, who also happened to be the first elected head of state of PoJK, was later forced to resign through an engineered vote of no-confidence and on August 5, 1964 when his presidency came to an abrupt end. Later he was arrested and sent to Dalai camp. He was stripped and kept naked for 15 days. Khurshid died in 1988 in a road accident. Another president of PoJK, Sardar Qayyum, was arrested in Kotli by the Bhutto government and kept in Panderi jail. He was charged with treason. Chaudhary Noor Hussain, former president of PoJK and father of the current President Sultan Mahmood, was arrested and accused of writing a letter to India for help. Chaudhary Ghulam Abbas of the Muslim Conference, who was made the supreme head of PoJK in 1949, was also arrested at one point during the 1950s by Pakistan. Hence, the treatment that PoJK's current prime minister has been given is nothing alien to the political history of the occupied territory. It is a manifestation of a cruel and ugly reality that confirms that my people are living under the legacy of colonial oppression of Pakistan. The irony is that even after being treated like dirt the ruling classes of PoJK still try to win the favour of their occupier. Therefore, even after the recent spate of insult that Ilyas has been awarded with, he still claims that Pakistan is dear to him than his own life. Despite derogatory treatment being received from Pakistan from Khurshid to Ilyas all heads of states of PoJK were and remain loyal to the hateful jihadi ideology of Jinnah's two-nation theory. The only social force that can help liberate PoJK from shame, humiliation and the continuous occupation of Pakistan is therefore the common people of the occupied land. (Dr Amjad Ayub Mirza is an author and a human rights activist from Mirpur in PoJK. He currently lives in exile in the UK.)

HUGE HUMAN TOLL IS FEARED AS ZERO-COVID CONTROLS DISMANTLED IN CHINA

London | Agencies

Beijing's abrupt dismantling of zero-Covid controls has been welcomed by economists, even as the country braces itself for the human impact of letting the disease spread through a vulnerable population, media reports said. The leadership's abrupt U-turn on how it handles the pandemic appears to have been triggered by protests against controls that began last month, a nationwide show of discontent on a scale China had not seen in decades, The Guardian reported. Nearly one in five young people in cities are unemployed. Small and medium businesses have been particularly badly hit by the uncertainty, and the impact of unpredictable and often long-lasting shutdowns of entire cities. But almost no one has been exempt. The founder of Foxconn, a key Apple supplier, had warned

Beijing that controls threatened China's place in the global supply chain, the Wall Street Journal reported. The IMF's Managing Director, Kristalina Georgieva, welcomed the "decisive" steps by Chinese authorities in "recalibrating Covid policies", and said they could boost the regional international economy. "This can be very good for the Chinese people and economy, and also good for Asia and the world economy," she said after a summit in China's eastern Huangshan city. Premier Li Keqiang, who hosted the discussions, had conspicuously abandoned masks and social distancing, The Guardian reported. On social media, public information videos showed smiling men and women taking off the face coverings that have been compulsory for years. It was a whiplash-inducing reversal from years of messaging that the only way to stay safe was to avoid Covid, through extreme lockdown measures if necessary. For years, an increasingly fierce system of controls held increasingly infectious strains of disease at bay. Medical experts say that was a wasted window of opportunity to protect the population and prepare the healthcare system for a wave of sick patients, The Guardian reported. The big challenge facing the leadership now is whether it can limit case numbers and deaths. China is an ageing country, with vaccination and booster rates lagging far behind what is needed to limit severe illness.

The road accident occurred outside the provincial capital city of Kunduz early morning due to reckless driving, Xinhua News Agency reported quoting police. While blaming carelessness of the driver for the deadly traffic accident, Rohani said related authorities would take steps to ensure highway traffic safety.

8 DEAD, 1 INJURED AFTER FLOOD SWEEPS PASSENGER CAR AWAY IN PHILIPPINES

Manila: Eight passengers, including a five-year-old girl, died in Rizal province of the Philippines after a flash flood swept a passenger car. Patrolman Jason Benitez of the Tanay town police told Xinhua that the accident happened before 9 p.m. local time on Saturday, while the jeepney carrying 25 passengers was crossing a river travelling north to a village from the town. Norberto Francisco Matienzo, chief of the Tanay Municipal Disaster Reduction Management Office, said the jeepney got stuck in the middle of the river when it was swept away by a flash flood, Xinhua News Agency reported. He added that seven others who died from the accident were over 60 years old while another one was injured. The elongated, flatbed passenger jeepneys are the most popular mode of public transport in the Philippines. These iconic vehicles have been plying on the streets of the Philippines since World War II. However, many accidents in the Southeast Asian country are blamed on these poorly maintained vehicles made up of second-hand car parts.

INDIAN 'PLOGGER' ON MISSION TO CLEAN 30 UK CITIES

London | Agencies

An Indian environmentalist, who founded the world's first community-led plogging campaign -- an eco-movement where people pick up street litter as they jog -- is on a mission to clean up 30 cities in 30 days across the UK. Over the past year, Vivek Gurav and his team of volunteers picked up 5,000 kg of rubbish, including 3,000 kg of plastic, all while out running in Bristol. "I have only been plogging in Bristol but I kept getting asked by people in Manchester, Leeds, Derby, to come plogging there," Vivek, a student of University of Bristol, said in a statement. "So I decided to do a plogging challenge across 30 UK cities," said Vivek, who started his plogging tour on December 10, beginning with Cardiff and Swansea cities. The former app developer began plogging in Pune in 2018 and didn't want to stop when he left India in September 2021, to take up a University of Bristol scholarship. Since then, the 26 year-old has covered 420 miles on 120 plogging 'missions', and has been joined by volunteers from 180 countries. His efforts saw him featured on the BBC One Show and pick up the "Points of Light Award" from then-Prime Minister Boris Johnson. In October, he was invited to 10 Downing Street by PM Rishi Sunak and in November he spoke at COY17 -- the youth version of COP27. Vivek, who is studying for a masters degree in environmental policy and management, said he wants to inspire people so they could "start their own groups". "Ultimately, I want to set-up a UK-wide plogging community like I did back in India. So, if I can go out plogging across the UK, orientate people, give them a blueprint, then they can start their own groups," Vivek said in a statement released by University of Bristol. He hopes to be joined by fellow ploggers, environmentalists and keen runners as he visits each city via public transport. Vivek will be plogging in Derby, Nottingham, Leeds, Sheffield, Manchester, Liverpool, Leicester, Birmingham and Worcester.

Chile issues alert after Lascar volcano spits ash

Santiago | Agencies Chile authorities issued an alert after Lascar volcano in the Andes belched ash 6,000m (almost 20,000ft) into the sky. Sundeep Pouranik | Bhopal

Madhya Pradesh's capital Bhopal is called the 'city of lakes', for which, the World Health Organization (WHO) has started preparations to make it a 'healthy city'.

According to WHO, the concept of a healthy city is native to the countries in Europe, but will be implemented in many cities of India, if deemed successful here.

A meeting of the departments and social workers was held wherein it was said that Bhopal had better health indicators than other cities.

The health organisation, Swasti, found in a research that the city was the one with maximum potential one for the project.

According to the criteria set to achieve the target, alongside work on the set goals, the quality of the city's food and the identification and prevention of diseases caused by them will be worked on.

While the plan may take up to eight years to complete, those present at the meeting called for improving the quality of street food.

Emphasis was laid on improving the sewage system, drinking water supply and making the citizens aware of cleanliness.

The city faces many challenges including Tobacco and alcohol consumption, prevalence of malnutrition and obesity, road safety and civic sense, air pollution and behavioural aspects which will be tackled in the project. Abbas Hafeez, Congress' Media department Vice Chairman took a jibe at BJP and said that the party was all talk and did not care about implementing their announcements. He added that the city's unfortunate condition in 18 years of BJP rule was apparent and could not be hidden.

He expressed doubt on whether and for how long the capital would be able to hold on to its identity of being the city of lakes. Hafeez stated how long would the saffron party continue looting the public in the garb of the project. A BJP leader said that the condition of the state before 2003 was known to everyone, where the roads had turned into potholes and cries for water were omnipresent.

He added that his party emphasised on ensuring better facilities for the public and claimed that the roads and the electricity system at present in the state had made people's lives comfortable.

He accused the Congress party of false allegations.

CONTROVERSY OVER FARMER LOAN WAIVER AGAIN IN MADHYA PRADESH

Team Absolute | Bhopal

Even though less than a year is left for the assembly elections in Madhya Pradesh, the phase of political maneuvering has already started. On the statement of loan waiver, even the political dispute has intensified. The Congress got power in the state assembly elections held in the year 2018 and the main reason for this was the announcement of loan waiver for the farmers. Kamal Nath's government lasted for about 15 months and the government fell due to the rebellion of the MLAs under the leadership of Union Minister Jyotiraditya Scindia. Now that the elections are round the corner, Congress state president and former chief minister Kamal Nath has once again made a bet of loan waiver for farmers.

Former Chief Minister Kamal Nath has said that the farmer loan waiver scheme, which was stopped by the Shivraj government, will be started again as soon as the Congress government is formed in Madhya Pradesh.

Politics has heated up in the state after the former Chief Minister's loan waiver statement and Chief Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan reminded Rahul Gandhi's statement in which Gandhi had announced to change the Chief Minister if loan waiver was not done within 10 days. Chief Minister Chouhan says that he had promised to waive the loan in 10 days, when he was given a chance for a year and a half, he could not do it, now he has come again to say that he will do it. The wooden pot is raised once, not again and again, the public knows their truth.

He further said in a poetic way, don't talk here and there, tell why the loan was not waived in 10 days.

In the last elections in the state, the Congress had promised to waive the loan of farmers up to two lakhs, but the government fell within 15 months. After that the figures regarding loan waiver have come out, it has been said that loans of 27.5 lakh farmers were waived off. This figure was presented in the House by Kamal Patel, the Agriculture Minister of the state government.

Now once again both the political parties are face to face on farmer loan waiver and have also started trying to reach out to the farmers. The BJP has even started the Kisan Gaurav Yatra, while the Congress is preparing to go from village to village.

The 'Just My Luck' star went on to add that 'Falling for Christmas', in which she plays the role of a spoiled hotel heiress who loses her memory in a skiing accident, has a "great message" which she loved being able to bring to the screen.

She added, "And it has a great message, which is that you don't really need all of the material things in life. It's good to just focus on the simple things, and I really love that."

As part of the film's soundtrack, Lindsay has recorded a version of 'Jingle Bell Rock' and explained that she was "nervous" about performing the song because she hoped fans of 'Mean Girls', which features a memorable scene in which she performs the Christmas classic in a high school talent show alongside Rachel McAdams, Lacey Chabert, and Amanda Seyfried - would enjoy it just as much. She said, "I was (nervous) because I haven't recorded in a long time and felt the pressure of doing it in a way that people who had seen 'Mean Girls' would like it the same."

"With 'Mean Girls', we had the dance behind it and I had all the other girls with me. This was just my voice. So, it was nerve-racking. But the outcome was incredible. I'm really, really happy."

Mike Flanagan to adapt 'The Dark Tower' into a series

Los Angeles | Agencies

'Oculus' helmer Mike Flanagan, who is known for his knack for long-form storytelling, and has long wished to tackle Stephen King's novel saga 'The Dark Tower', is finally putting up the adaptation together, reports. In a new interview, Flanagan confirmed the news everyone's been waiting for: he's officially working on a series adaptation of 'The Dark Tower' under his Intrepid Pictures banner.

Now, this coincides with various shifting spheres in Flanagan's world -- he recently ended his deal with Netflix (set to close out with his upcoming 'The Fall Of The House Of Usher' series), and has set up a new deal at Amazon.

"Predating our deal with Amazon, we acquired the rights to 'The Dark Tower', which if you know anything about me, you know has been my Holy Grail of a project for most of my life," he said. "We actually have those rights carved out of our Amazon deal, which doesn't mean that they can't or won't get behind it at some point -- you don't know. But that's something we've been developing ourselves and are really passionate about finally getting it up on its feet at some point."

Flanagan concludes by noting: "A project like this, I wouldn't want to be involved in it at all if we were taking it in a direction that was going to be blasphemous to the Stephen King material, but he's been very, very supportive and very excited about what we'd like to do with it."

Mariah Carey's daughter joined her on stage for their first-ever duet

Los Angeles | Agencies

American pop icon Mariah 'Mimi' Carey's daughter Monroe joined her on stage for their first-ever duet of the classic hymn 'Away in a Manger' at Mimi's 'Merry Christmas to All' show. She even harmonised with Mariah as she whistled, as per reports. The performance, taking place at the Scotiabank Arena, saw the pair go back and forth with verses, as Monroe proved that she might've just picked up a few tricks from her Grammy-winning mother.

According to the reports, the heartfelt bonding moment took place on stage in front of thousands, as Mimi and Monroe -- twin sister of Moroccan, both of whom Mimi shares with former husband Nick Cannon -- sat surrounded by Christmas decorations and delivered the classic hymn. Mariah looked into her daughter's eyes throughout the performance and gave her a sweet kiss as she walked offstage.

In a video circulating on Twitter, fans can be heard cheering on Mariah's daughter. Of course, this isn't the first time Monroe has joined Mariah on stage. When she and her brother were younger, they'd join Mariah to perform 'Always Be My Baby' during her Number 1 to Infinity Las Vegas residency and at a few other shows around 2017 and 2018.

It certainly took more convincing to get the kids to sing then, but now Monroe is starting to find her sound with Carey's help.

Britney smears herself with cake

Los Angeles | Agencies

Pop icon Britney Spears shared a sexy Santa dance with fans as she made a dramatic return to social media -- before adding a "disturbing" birthday cake smearing scene into the mix.

"The One More Time" singer bounced back to Instagram with a bang as she suggestively swooshed along to classic Christmas tune "Santa Baby" wearing a figure-hugging red suit paired with white knee high boots, reports. But her low-quality phone footage took a bizarre turn as she cut to a shot of her face planting a birthday cake -- before smearing the cream down the front of her outfit. The singer, who turned 41 last week, then opened up to her 41.4 million Insta followers about her absence. According to the reports, her husband Sam Asghari had previously said the platform could be "traumatising" for the star but warned fans to be wary of being "overprotective".

Breaking her silence, Britney wrote a caption that said: "30 sec to mars !!! Yep it's my b-day all week and I know my Instagram has been down a few times but honestly I did the last two times myself !!! Oops... I accidentally pressed the wrong button ... damn that stupid button."

In the caption she hinted she's already looking ahead to next year as she also reflected on her 'equal' status since being released from a controversial Conservatorship which restricted her freedoms.

Britney celebrated her birthday on December 2 and appeared to be making the most of the celebration as she planted her face in cream before continuing to 'perform' for the camera.

Fraser needed 5 ice bags daily to cool him in the suit for the movie

Los Angeles | Agencies

Brendan Fraser's transformation in 'The Whale' is part of one of the most talked-about performances of the year. In the Darren Aronofsky-helmed film, Fraser plays Charlie, a house-bound 272 kg English teacher who teaches students virtually with his camera blacked out. He's also working to salvage his relationship with his estranged daughter, played by Sadie Sink, reports. Fraser gained some weight for the role, but prosthetics makeup designer Adrien Morot was tasked with transforming the actor much more dramatically. Morot relied on 3D printing technological advancements to print the suit. According to the sources, the application process eventually whittled down to four hours. For the latest Creative Collaborators, Fraser and Morot discuss their collaboration and how ice bags and a racecar driver cooling suit system kept the actor cool during the intense shoot.

Giroud nets match winner as France edge England 2-1 to reach semis

Doha | Agencies

An Olivier Giroud goal twelve minutes from end helped France edge England 2-1 in a fast-paced game to set up a FIFA World Cup semi-final clash with Morocco, who sensationally beat Portugal in the other quarter-final of the day.

Aurelien Tchouameni put France ahead with a blistering long-range shot in the 17th minute at Al Bayt Stadium in Qatar on Saturday. England fans were left particularly aggrieved after calls for two suspected fouls against Bukayo Saka were dismissed in the seconds before the defending world champions opened the scoring and went into the half-time break leading 1-0.

But there wasn't much to see from France during the rest of the first half and the Englishmen returned from the break as the better team. Their pressing was rewarded with a penalty after Saka was brought down inside the box.

Captain Kane fired a power-packed effort from the spot to level the game in the 54th and net his 53rd goal for England, equalling Wayne Rooney as the joint-highest scorer for the Three Lions.

Harry Maguire could have put England ahead in the 70th but narrowly missed the target. On the other side of the pitch, Giroud also missed from close range in the 77th, but didn't waste the next chance and headed into the net a cross from Griezmann just a minute later. A last-minute free-kick gave England a final beacon of hope but Marcus Rashford's effort beat the top corner of the net by a few centimetres.

WE CAN BE PROUD OF THIS ENGLAND TEAM: WAYNE ROONEY

Doha | Legendary footballer Wayne Rooney backed England after their quarterfinal loss to France and said the game deserved to go into extra time.

France reached the FIFA World Cup semifinal, where they will face Morocco. Rooney said that England has a young squad and should look ahead.

"It was always going to be a tight game. England showed that they are a very good team. They certainly deserved to take it to extra time," said Rooney. He added, "France have that know-how of winning the tournament and getting results maybe, when they are not at their best. So, it is a shame, for some moments, certainly for Harry Kane. He has been a leader for so many years. He will be feeling really down tonight. But we can be proud of this England team. They gave everyone hope. They still have a really young squad and should look forward to the next tournament."

I'LL HAVE TO LIVE WITH PENALTY MISS, BUT I'M PROUD OF THE TEAM: KANE

Doha | England captain Harry Kane accepted responsibility for his side's defeat in the quarterfinal of the World Cup against France.

Kane, who had already levelled the score with a penalty in to cancel out Aurelien Tchouameni's 17th minute opener for France and in the 83rd minute he had another opportunity to level from the spot after Mason Mount was bundled over by Theo Hernandez, reports. This time however, Kane sent his effort high into the night sky and France held on for the win. "I can't fault my preparation or the details before the game. I felt confident taking it, just didn't execute it the way I wanted to. It will be something I have to live with and take on the chin," Kane told the BBC. "It's tough to take for me personally and the team," he added, praising England's performance which saw them have more possession and more shots on target than the French. "I couldn't be prouder of the boys. We had better spells, better chances but football comes down to small details - as the captain and the one who missed the penalty, I take responsibility for that," said Kane, who is optimistic for the future of a young squad. "The team is in a really good place and there will be highs in the future."

ENG vs PAK 2nd Test Day 3

Imam, Shakeel fifties keep Pakistan in the hunt against England

Multan | Agencies

Defiant half-centuries by Imam-ul-Haq (60) and Saud Shakeel (54 not out) revived Pakistan's chase and kept them in the hunt as they reached 198 for 4, chasing a target of 355 runs, at the end of the third day's play in the second Test, here on Sunday.

Imam and Shakeel added 108 runs for the fourth wicket before the former fell late in the day to set up an interesting finish to the second Test. At stumps, Saud was unbeaten on 54 with Faheem Ashraf on three with Pakistan still 157 runs short of their target.

Earlier, England added 73 runs to their overnight score of 5-202. Ben Stokes (41) needed 43 balls to score his first boundary and was the first to fall, holding out in the deep to trigger a collapse. Spinner Abrar Ahmed picked up his 11th wicket in his debut Test by bowling Ollie Robinson through the gate.

Overnight batter Harry Brook (108) reached his second hundred of the series before leg-spinner Zahid Mahmood (3-52) polished off the English tail to bowl out visitors for 275 in their second innings. Chasing a 355-run target, Pakistan had to rejig their opening pair following a hamstring niggle to Imam. They promoted the struggling Mohammad Rizwan, who hit a flurry of boundaries early in his knock to transfer the pressure back on England.

James Anderson removed Rizwan for 30 immediately after lunch with a peach of a delivery that angled in and beat the outside edge to hit off stump. Robinson produced a similarly stunning ball to dismiss Pakistan captain Babar Azam for one.

Abdullah Shafique made 45 but could not protect his off-stump from the pace and movement of Mark Wood. Imam came in at number five and revived Pakistan's chase with Saud. Having added 53 runs before tea, they continued to keep the English bowlers at bay for most of the final session, before Leach finally bagged his first wicket of the innings by removing Imam.

Thereafter, Faheem Ashraf and Shakeel dropped anchor to see through the remaining period of the day's play safely. Brief scores: England 281 & 275 (Harry Brook 108, Ben Duckett 79; Abrar Ahmed 4-120, Zahid Mahmood 3-52) lead Pakistan 202 & 198/4 (Imam ul Haq 60, Saud Shakeel 54 not out) by 156 runs.

Australia with a dominant victory over the West Indies

Adelaide | Agencies

Australia have moved one step closer to cementing their spot at next year's ICC World Test Championship final with a dominant 419-run victory over the West Indies in the second Test here on Sunday.

The World Test Championship pacesetters wrapped up the 2-0 series sweep late in the first session on the fourth day of the clash, with pacer Michael Neser completing proceedings by dismissing Marquino Mindley for a duck.

It means Australia moves further ahead at the head of the World Test Championship standings, with the Aussies now boasting an impressive 75 per cent win-percentage for the current period.

Pat Cummins' side can increase their lead at the top when they host South Africa in a three-match series that commences in Brisbane later this week, before they embark on a difficult four-Test series in India during February and March that may decide which two teams qualify for next year's final. Cummins himself missed the demolition in Adelaide due to a quad injury, but is expected to recover in time to lead Australia in the first Test against the Proteas that starts at the Gabba on Saturday.

Fellow pacer Josh Hazlewood is in doubt for the clash with his side strain, with Scott Boland and Neser both performing well against the West Indies and a chance to retain their place in Australia's XI. The series was bitterly disappointing for the West Indies, who now slip out of the race for next year's World Test Championship final as a result of the two disappointing losses.

While the Caribbean side put up a fight for much of the first Test in Perth, the second Test in Adelaide was a different story and the 77 the West Indies mustered during the second innings was the lowest total they have managed in Test history in Australia and their second lowest against the Aussies overall.

BWF World Tour Finals YAMAGUCHI BEATS TAI TZU-YING TO CLINCH WOMEN'S SINGLES TITLE

Bangkok (Thailand) | Agencies

Japan's Akane Yamaguchi beat Tai Tzu-Ying of Chinese Taipei 21-18, 22-20 in the final to clinch the women's singles title at the Badminton World Federation (BWF) World Tour Finals, here on Sunday.

While the score was close Yamaguchi, who last won the season-ender five years ago, was unmistakably in the driver's seat during the 46-minute contest.

With this, the Japanese became the first women's singles player since Ye Zhaoying in 1997 to claim the All England Open, World Championships and end-of-season finals all in the same year. "She kept coming at me, to put pressure on me. But I wanted to be aggressive to hold on to the lead. I don't know if it's the best I've ever played but I did have a good week here," said Yamaguchi after her win.

"I thought I defended well in the second game. I didn't panic and waited for my opportunity to attack. I'm not tall so the speed is important to me. Without it I don't think I stand a chance," she added. Her opponent Tai, who missed her third WTF title, admitted to struggling to keep up with the ferocious speed.

"I thought she was slightly faster than me. I wanted to attack because my defense wasn't great today. But unfortunately, I couldn't cut down on my errors and her net play was very good," said Tai.

"I did quite OK this season. The new season will start quickly in January so I won't get much time to rest. I hope to recover and get back in good condition. There will be many competitions starting from April," she added.

He appeared on 'The Kapil Sharma Show' as a special guest along with the team of the web series, including Saiyami Kher, Pavail Gulati, and Ashwiny Iyer Tiwari.

During a conversation with the host, Kapil Sharma, when asked if he was given a bottle of alcohol by the producers, he replied: "Yes, I did get a bottle, but that was of glycerin not alcohol."

Pavail Gulati jokingly added about how Abhilash had a separate budget for glycerin as he never entered the set without glycerin.

Abhilash continued: "My character is an alcoholic but on the other hand, I am a teetotaler. And Ashwiny ma'am was very precise about how the character looked, so I made it a point to personify the look on screen. My character looks very tanned and shabby, he drinks a lot, so even before the wine shop opens, he is waiting at the gate. His eyes have a slight shine so to get that, I used glycerine."

While complimenting him, co-star Saiyami shared: "Abhilash plays the role of an alcoholic so whenever we used to sit in Pavail's vanity, people on set would not recognise him and would try to throw him out thinking he is some random man, his look was that realistic."

She told him: "That day I was going to leave the house so you did not press the buzzer and today suddenly you pressed it. Why did you take so much time to decide to support me, if I would be at your place I would have pressed it on the third count and saved you."

She also added that she saw him dancing after she left the house. "I saw you singing songs."

I was only worried about my food and she used to do it so that is the only thing I am missing right now because who will make chicken for me now?
