Shinde Vs Thackeray: Thackeray faction seeks reference to 7-judge bench in SC

Team Absolute | Mumbai

Former Maharashtra Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray faction on Tuesday asked the Supreme Court to refer the judgement in the Nabam Rebia case to a seven-judge bench of the apex court.

Senior advocate Kapil Sibal, appearing for the Thackeray faction, contended before a five-judge bench headed by Chief Justice D.Y. Chandrachud, that the court may refer the Nabam Rebia judgement (2016) to the seven-judge bench, "if we are able to persuade the court to do so".

Besides the Governor, other BJP leaders like state ministers Chandrakant Patil, Mangal Prabhat Lodha, Union Minister Raosaheb Danve, have been accused of making objectionable statements against the state's icons, though Lodha subsequently retracted his utterances while Patil apologised.

80 groups, parties march to protest insults to Chhatrapati, others

Pune | Agencies

In an unprecedented massive show of strength, over 80 political parties and social organisations staged a silent march here on Tuesday to protest the repeated slurs on Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj and other icons, while large areas of the city, including wholesale markets observed a shutdown.

The processionists, estimated at nearly two lakhs, sported saffron flags, black banners and posts and demanded the removal of Governor Bhagat Singh Koshyari for his recent utterances vilifying great icons of the state.

Maha Vikas Aghadi members Congress, Shiv Sena-UBT, Nationalist Congress Party, around three dozen Maratha, Shiv Premi and Muslim organisations, the royal descendent Chhatrapati Udayanraje Bhosale and a large number of women walked in the silent march from Deccan to Lal Mahal areas of the city.

However, the ruling Balasahebchichi Shiv Sena-Bharatiya Janata Party and Raj Thackeray's Maharashtra Navnirman Sena kept off the protest demonstration, where a massive police contingent of over 7,500 personnel was deployed to ward off any untoward incidents.

Wending its way peacefully through various residential and commercial areas of the city, the processionists condemned the Governor and others who speak ill of the revered personalities in various fora. Posing a direct challenge to the BJP top brass, Bhosale asked the media that when Nupur Sharma (who made derogatory remarks on the Prophet Mohammed in May) was removed by the party, what prevented it from ousting the Governor for the utterances against the Chhatrapati, and initiating action against all others who keep making derogatory comments on icons which hurt public sen-iments. MVA's leaders in the procession included Shiv Sena-UBT Deputy Leader Dr. Raghunath Kuchik, Sushma Andhare, Sena-UBT city chief Sanjay More, NCP's city President Prashant Jagtap, office-bearers Rupali Patil, Deepak Mankar and Ankush Kakde, Ajinkya Palkar, Congress city chief Ramesh Bagwe, office-bearers Arvind Shinde, Sangeeta Tiwari, Mohan Joshi, Balasaheb Dabhekar, and the Sambhaji Brigade was represented by Santosh Shinde, Vikas Pasalkar, and Prashant Dhumal.

Other major groups which joined were the CPI, Maratha Mahasangh, Dalit Panthers, RPI, Aam Aadmi Party, Vanchit Bahujan Aghadi, over two dozen non-political, social, business organisations, youths, women and Muslim front groups.

The MVA leaders have rejected the Governor's letter (December 6) clarifying his position to Union Home Minister Amit Shah, and said that since he has not apologised for his remarks against Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj or Mahatma Jyotirao Phule, he has lost the moral right to continue in his post.

Among other things in his letter, Koshyari said that he "cannot even dream" of insulting the great personalities as contended and sought Shah's "guidance" in the matter.

The state has been rocked by a series of agitations and protests against the Governor for his recent utterances that have irked the state polity and top leaders also objected to him sharing the stage with Prime Minister Narendra Modi in Nagpur on Sunday.

Unknown caller issues 'death threats' to Sharad Pawar

Team Absolute | Mumbai

An unidentified person called up the residence of Nationalist Congress Party (NCP) President Sharad Pawar and threatened to kill him, party leaders said here on Tuesday.

The caller rang up from an unknown location to the Pawars' Silver Oaks home and threatened in Hindi that he would come to Mumbai and shoot him with a country-made pistol.

As precaution, the NCP leader's security detail has lodged a complaint with Gamdevi Police Station which has started investigations. Confirming the development, NCP chief spokesperson Mahesh Tapase said that the caller appears to be 'mentally unstable' who keeps calling up the Pawar residence at regular intervals and makes such dire threats.

"He has called up several times in the past few days and issued similar threats. The police have been informed," said Tapase.

The calls came a day after Pawar celebrated his 82nd birthday on Monday with a grand function attended by top leaders of the NCP Congress and Shiv Sena (UBT) and other well-wishers.

Even in the past, Pawar has been targeted with such threats, including in May this year, and in April his residence was attacked by striking activists of the Maharashtra State Road Transport Corporation.

With a chaotic surge, Mumbai airport mirrors suburban railway stations

After notching a record post-pandemic air passengers movement, the Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj International Airport (CSMIA) is witnessing a massive overcrowding of fliers with the swank terminal resembling a chaotic Mumbai railway station during peak hours.

Social activist Binu Varghese and other passengers posted alarming videos of the sea of humanity at the airport, with many irate fliers breaching security norms to rush past barricades or security and baggage check-ins, even as the harried CISF and Mumbai Police personnel tried to grapple the situation.

Videos showed huge crowds at CSMIA-T2 with passengers wearily awaiting their turns to complete the check-in procedures as the crowds continued to increase outside and inside. "Massive crowds of passengers were seen moving around in CSMIA T2, today at 5 a.m., shot by me. Do plan your schedule," advised Varghese, while businessman Ritesh Dodhia of 'Dodhia Group' suggested "heavy rush at domestic airport security check-in whoever planning to travel please take care of extra time". The social media went viral with the videos of the disarray at CSMIA, venting their ire on the airport authorities and even tagged Ratan Tata and AAI, among others.

Another Twitteratti uploaded a photo and wrote how "Mumbai roads and stations had this scene", and said the chaos is such that even gates are not allotted to airlines, with no kiosks and pad.

The besieged CSMIA has said that it is working on the issue but due to the sudden passenger surge, they are being prioritised as per departure timings. The developments came just a day after the CSMIA announced on Monday that it had created a record of 1.50 lakh domestic and international fliers passing through the airport, in the post-pandemic times on December 10, which was 97 per cent of the pre-pandemic peak.

Tuesday's photos and videos at CSMIA were similar to the scenes witnessed at Delhi airport last week and after many complaints, Civil Aviation Minister Jyotiraditya Scindia paid a surprise visit to the airport.

High Court refuses urgent hearing on Nawab Malik's bail plea

Team Absolute | Mumbai

The Bombay High Court on Tuesday refused to grant urgent hearing on former Maharashtra minister Nawab Malik's bail plea in a money laundering case linked to a land deal in which fugitive gangster Dawood Ibrahim and his aides were involved.

The 62-year-old politician had approached the high court after a special court here rejected his bail plea on November 30. The single bench of Justice M S Karnik denied Malik's request for an urgent hearing on his plea and directed the Enforcement Directorate (ED) to file its response to the plea in two weeks. The judge adjourned the matter to January 6. As the matter was called out on Tuesday, Justice Karnik asked Malik's counsel Amit Desai to first satisfy the urgency for hearing the matter. Desai then informed the court about the senior NCP leader's medical conditions.

Malik had only one functioning kidney and required an urgent transplant, he said and submitted that the former minister's family wanted to start the procedure for a transplant, which may require tests and meetings with specialists.

The judge then asked Desai to submit before the court what treatment is required, and said a reply will then be sought from the ED and orders will be passed accordingly.

Delhiites feeling the 'December heat' wait for cold days

Is it winter yet?" This is how most of the residents in the national capital are reacting now a days as December has almost reached midway. However, with Delhiites yet to feel the cold December, the India Meteorological Department (IMD) forecast for the week indicates that the minimum temperature could drop to around 6 degrees Celsius by December 17. The maximum temperature in the national capital on Monday was recorded at 28.7 degrees Celsius, which is likely to drop over the week ahead, the forecast indicates. As per experts, the temperature is likely to fall to around 24 degrees Celsius by December 15. "Due the impact of Western disturbance, winds were light over North West India leading to increase in temperatures. Maximum temperature of Delhi was 28.4 degrees, 4 degrees above normal. Will drop in the next 2-3 days," said Mahesh Pahlawat, vice president meteorology and climate change, Skymet. An official said that misty mornings are also on the forecast for Delhi over the next six days and shallow to moderate fog is likely over isolated parts of Delhi, Haryana, Chandigarh and Punjab over the next two days. The IMD record in Delhi's Safdarjung stated that in 2021, December 5 was the hottest day which recorded 26.5 degrees Celsius while in 2007, the highest temperature recorded was 26.9 degrees Celsius on December 25, which is considered as a coldest day. The city has mostly remained warm during the day so far this month. "Since I shifted to Delhi, this is the first time in the last four years that I am waiting desperately for a cold December. It feels like I am sitting somewhere in Rajasthan," said Shobit Sharma, a resident of Malviya Nagar in south Delhi.

CHRISTIANITY IN QUESTION IN UK AND US

Asad Mirza

Over the years, it was believed that Christianity was ebbing in the UK, but now the fear has been proved right. The figures made public on November 29, from the 2021 census published by the Office for National Statistics show that, for the first time, less than half of the population of England and Wales consider themselves to be Christians.

Their number fell by 17 per cent in a decade, to 27.5 million. The number of people who ticked the "no religion" box rocketed by 57 per cent, to 22.2 million. Though some may say that now the UK is becoming more secular, but others also points to the fact that at the cost of Christianity, some other religions are growing.

The annual British Social Attitudes Survey, by contrast, found in 2020 that 53 per cent of British adults belong to no religion, with only 37 per cent Christians. Separately a poll commissioned by Humanists UK in 2019 showed that 29 per cent of British adults hold all the fundamental beliefs and values of humanists, hinting at the widespread shift in popular values, opinions, and identity the UK has undergone in the 21st century.

The census showed that the number of Muslims has risen by 42 per cent; they now constitute 7 per cent of the British population. British Hindus hit the million mark for the first time. These changes also reflect big demographic shifts. One in six of those who filled in the census were born abroad, compared with one in ten a decade ago.

Three cities are "majority-minority": Birmingham (51.4 per cent), Leicester (59.1 per cent) and Luton (54.8 per cent), i.e. Christians have become a minority in these cities. The Economist magazine says that some on the right are bawling the revelation that Christianity is now a minority religion. But will passing this symbolic threshold actually change anything? It could influence discussions over the state funding of faith schools. Most are still Christian amidst concerns that non-Christian faith schools may exacerbate ethnic segregation: Hindu schools, for example, tend to be populated only by children of immigrants from south Asian countries.

There is another related worrying thought, if immigration continues to rise, secularisation will slow. As it is assumed that immigrants tend to have a reviving effect on all religions; that is largely why church attendance has held up better in London than it has in other places.

Meanwhile, the Labour Party is proposing to abolish the House of Lords, bishops and all. Yet, the most distinctive element of Britain's form of theocracy is likely to adapt rather than disappear. Though he promised in September to "inviolably maintain and preserve the settlement of the true Protestant religion" King Charles III seems taken by the practices of other believers, too. At his coronation next May, he may try to cast himself as defender of all faiths. It helps that he is king alongside a Hindu prime minister and a Muslim mayor of London, opines The Economist.

The ONS figures also revealed that the majority of Muslims are living in the areas of England and Wales with the worst levels of deprivation. Muslims now account for 7 per cent of the population in England and Wales, some 3.9 million in 2021, however, the data showed 61 per cent of them live in the lowest 40 percent of areas ranked by deprivation score, The Guardian has reported.

Added to it, immigration has always been one of the major drivers of the UK's politics and there is a belief amongst the 'Whites', that the immigration is responsible for changing the UK's nature and character. Brexit was chosen as a direct result of this fear along with related economic woes.

Meanwhile, in the US, growing numbers of religious and political leaders are embracing the 'Christian nationalist' label, and some dispute the idea that the country's founders wanted a separation of church and state. On the other side of the debate, however, many Americans - including the leaders of many Christian churches - have pushed back against Christian nationalism, calling it a 'danger' to the country.

According to a report released by the Pew Research Centre on October 27, more than four-in-ten US adults say the country should be a 'Christian nation', but far fewer want churches to endorse candidates, speak out on politics.

Most US adults believe America's founders intended the country to be a Christian nation, and many say they think it should be a Christian nation today, according to the survey designed to explore Americans' views on the topic. But the survey also finds widely differing opinions about what it means to be a 'Christian nation' and to support 'Christian nationalism'.

For instance, many supporters of Christian nationhood define the concept in broad terms, as the idea that the country is guided by Christian values. Those who say the US should not be a Christian nation, on the other hand, are much more inclined to define a Christian nation as one where the laws explicitly enshrine religious teachings.

Overall, six-in-ten US adults - including nearly seven-in-ten Christians - say they believe the founders "originally intended" for the US to be a Christian nation. And 45 per cent of US adults - including about six-in-ten Christians - say they think the country "should be" a Christian nation. A third say the US "is now" a Christian nation.

These juxtaposing findings leads us to wonder whether the Western world is trying to really abandon the Christianity as the state religion, or taking a leaf from the current Indian politics, are they going to reassert and re-establish themselves as leading Christian nations needs to be watched. Does it also sound to be a death knell of a secular state, needs to be seen.

BRIGHTON VARSITY GUIDES STAFF TO NOT SAY 'CHRISTMAS' BECAUSE IT'S TOO 'CHRISTIAN-CENTRIC'

London | Agencies

The UK's University of Brighton has guided staff not to say "Christmas" this year and instead call it the "winter closure period", media reports said.

The word Christmas is too "Christian-centric", according to a nine-page "Inclusive Language Guidance" document sent to lecturers at the university, Daily Mail reported.

Staff should be "empowered" to use "inclusive language confidently and effectively, in order to ensure that both students and staff alike feel safe, valued and respected", the document says.

Generalisations about a group of people based on their age, such as saying "millennial snowflakes" or "old people cannot use technology", should also be avoided, according to the guidance. The document reads: "Language and meaning are powerfully conditioned by the dominant norms of the culture in which they exist." Prevailing attitudes, misconceptions and stereotypes are embedded within modes of communication, and these factors are sometimes reflected - whether consciously or not - in the language that we use when communicating with and referring to others. "This means that communication - both oral and written - may be offensive even when this is not our intention."

Andrew Allison, of the Freedom Association, said: "Universities are supposed to be places where ideas are freely debated.

"This is Orwellian and ridiculous. Staff and students ought to ignore it and have a good Christmas."

Then, in a table advising staff on what not to say to students, they are urged to avoid the term "Christmas closure period" and replace it with "winter closure period". The purpose of this is to "avoid using Christian-centric language", Daily Mail reported.

Meanwhile, staff are also advised not to ask students "What is your Christian name?" but instead question "What is your first name?" or "What is your given name?"

In a statement sent to MailOnline, a spokesperson for the University of Brighton said: "This guidance was produced with our staff and students and is part of our shared commitment to making Brighton a place where everyone feels respected and valued. The guidance is exactly that - guidance." They added: "Words are not 'banned' at Brighton, and neither is Christmas - as is clear from the decorations and Christmas trees in our buildings and across our campuses."

Iran carries out 2nd execution linked to anti-govt protests

Tehran | Agencies

In a second execution linked to the recent anti-government protests in Iran, a 23-year-old convicted of "enmity against God" was publicly hanged in the city of Mashhad, the media reported.

According to the judiciary, Majidreza Rahnavaard was hanged on Monday, the BBC reported.

Rahnavaard was executed just 23 days after he was arrested and charged of stabbing to death two members of the paramilitary Basij Resistance Force.

The BBC report said that his mother was not told of the execution until after his death and the family was then given the name of a cemetery and a plot number.

"When they turned up, security agents were burying his body," the report added.

On Twitter, opposition activist collective '1500tasvir' said that Rahnavaard's family were telephoned by an official at 7 a.m. on Monday morning and told: "We have killed your son and buried his body in Behesht-e Reza cemetery." "They allowed Rahnavaard's mother to visit him, and didn't speak of execution at all. She left smiling and hoping that her son would be released soon.

"This morning (Monday) she arrived when her son's murderers were burying his dead body alone," the collective said in another tweet.

The judiciary's Mizan news agency said Rahnavaard was hanged "in the presence of a group of Mashhadi citizens" and posted several photographs reportedly showing the execution.

The BBC said that he was denied a lawyer of his choice for his trial. "The lawyer he was given did not put up a defence," it said.

The women-led protests against Iran's clerical establishment were sparked by the death in custody of Mahsa Amini, a 22-year-old woman who was detained by morality police on September 13 for allegedly wearing her hijab "improperly".

Forest fires destroy 13,000 hectares of land in Chile this yr

Santiago | Agencies

Up to 1,587 forest fires have razed more than 13,000 hectares of land in Chile this year, Agriculture Minister Esteban Valenzuela said.

While the fires were 9 per cent fewer than those of the last season, they were more dangerous, leading to "40 per cent more damaged hectares", Xinhua news agency quoted the Minister as saying.

To combat forest fires, the government has invested 82 billion pesos ($94 million) to establish 243 forestry brigades across the country, he said.

Climate change has worsened forest fires in Chile, just as it has in Spain, France and the US, especially the west coast state of California, according to Valenzuela.

Currently, authorities are combating 11 forest fires around the country, eight of which have received a red alert from the National Emergency Office because they are spreading rapidly and threatening nearby homes and communities, he said.

Aircraft equipped with thermal cameras that can detect the location of hot spots are helping monitor blazes and dispatch brigade members, said Pablo Lobos, the head of Forest Fire Protection at the National Forestry Corporation (Conaf).

This year, the government beefed up Conaf's firefighting budget by 30 per cent.

According to data from Conaf, 35 per cent of forest fires were caused intentionally, and some 52 per cent by negligence or accidents.

CONGRESS LEADER RAJA PATERIYA DETAINED OVER REMARKS ON PRIME MINISTER MODI

Team Absolute | Bhopal

Bhopal: Madhya Pradesh Congress leader Raja Pateria was arrested for his controversial "be ready to kill" Prime Minister Narendra Modi remarks.

Pateria triggered outrage on Monday when a video of him surfaced in which he was heard goading a group of people to "kill" PM Modi in order to "save" the Constitution.

In the viral video, Mr Pateria, at a gathering of party workers, said, "Modi will end elections, Modi will divide on the basis of religion, caste, language; the lives of Dalits, tribals, and minorities are in danger. If the constitution is to be saved, then be ready to kill Modi." Following his remarks, the Madhya Pradesh government ordered a police case against Mr Pateria, a former state minister.

A case was registered against Pateria Monday afternoon at Pawai police station in Panna. Pateria was arrested from his residence in Hata town of the state's Damoh district.

Madhya Pradesh Chief Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan condemned the comments and even targeted Congress leader Rahul Gandhi by saying: "The real face of those pretending to do a Bharat Jodo Yatra is coming out."

"Congress people are not able to compete with PM Narendra Modi in the field, that's why a Congress leader is talking about killing him. This is the height of hatred. True feelings of Congress are being revealed. The law will take its course," the Chief Minister said in a statement.

In the same video, Pateria claimed that the word "murder" in his speech meant "defeat". The Congress leader said that he is a follower of Mahatma Gandhi's ideology of non-violence and defeating PM Modi in elections is necessary to protect the rights of minorities.

The Congress, meanwhile, expressed its dismay over the "reprehensible comments made by Pateria.

"Absolutely reprehensible! No such words should be used against the prime minister or against anyone. The Congress party denounces, condemns such statements," Congress leader Pawan Khera said. "There is no excuse to use any such language against anyone including and especially the prime minister," Khera said. Pateria will be in jail till at least December 26 after failing to secure bail. Meanwhile, the Madhya Pradesh Congress has issued him a show cause notice and sought a response within three days.

Chouhan also solved the questions and queries of the youth. Chief Minister said that democracy is the rule of the people, by the people and for the people. Our system is huge. Making schemes is easy, but the task of making the schemes accessible to the eligible people is fraught with various difficulties. In this, due to negligence by some people and due to the feeling of taking advantage, many schemes do not land on the ground. Apart from government machinery, the implementation of schemes can be made easier by using youth energy. Chief Minister Chouhan said that the idea has come in his mind that with the help of the youth, information about the schemes should be obtained. The youth are becoming the eyes and ears of the governance of this system. Based on the information given by the youth, morning meetings of the districts have been held. Good governance is that the benefits of schemes reach the right person without difficulty and without delay.

The incident took place at the traffic signal when the policeman tried to penalise the errant driver who had violated traffic rules. It led to an argument between the two and the driver refused to stop the vehicle. To save himself, the policeman jumped on to the vehicle and lay down on the bonnet.

A video of the incident surfaced on social media.

A police official said the accused has been arrested on the charges of rash driving, violating traffic rules, and causing hurt to on-duty public servants. 3 MLAs of Madhya Pradesh are in trouble

Team Absolute | Bhopal

Time is not going well for the MLAs in Madhya Pradesh. This is the reason that one after the other, the legislature of a total of three MLAs is in danger. It has been a long time that such a time has come when the membership of so many MLAs together is in trouble. For the time being, the way to go to the Supreme Court is open to him. All the leaders are busy preparing for the elections to be held in the state next year, while there are three MLAs of the state who have to win through the courts before going to the polls. The new case is of BJP MLA Jajpal Singh Jajji from Ashoknagar assembly constituency. The Gwalior Bench of the High Court, canceling the caste certificate of Jajji, has written a letter to the Assembly Speaker to terminate the membership of Jajji. The Gwalior bench canceled the caste certificate of Jajji and directed to register an FIR against him. In this order, apart from imposing a fine of Rs 50,000 on MLA Jajji, it has been asked to cancel the membership.

Jajji had contested the assembly elections from Ashoknagar in the year 2018, Jajji had got the Keer caste certificate made. The caste certificate was challenged through a petition, stating that the caste comes under the Scheduled Caste category in Punjab, but falls under the general category in Madhya Pradesh. That's why reservation cannot be given to Jajpal Singh in Madhya Pradesh. He is basically a resident of Punjab and his certificate will be made there also be applicable in the same state.

Jajji left the Congress along with Jyotiraditya Scindia and joined the BJP, after which he won the 2020 assembly elections as a BJP candidate. Another MLA is Ajab Singh Kushwaha of Congress from Sumavali in Morena district. It is alleged that he had sold the government land for about 75 lakhs claiming it as his own. In this case, a person named Purushottam Shakya had lodged a complaint in Maharajpura of Gwalior and said that MLA Ajab Singh sold this land to him, but did not get the possession. The police had also registered a case on this.

When the matter went to the Gwalior court, MLA Ajab Singh and others were sentenced to two years each and fined Rs 10,000 each. After this decision, the membership of the Congress MLA is under threat. According to the rules, if an MLA is punished for two years or more, then he will lose his membership of the Legislative Assembly and at the same time he will be ineligible to contest elections for six years.

CHRISTOPHER NOLAN RECREATES FIRST N-WEAPON DETONATION WITHOUT VFX

Los Angeles | Agencies

The pursuit of keeping things real pushed Christopher Nolan to recreate the first nuclear weapon detonation without CGI effects as part of the production for his upcoming movie 'Oppenheimer'. The film is based on nuclear physicist J. Robert Oppenheimer, who was the director of the Manhattan Project and therefore universally regarded as the "father of the atomic bomb", reports 'Variety'.

Nolan made the revelation about the film to 'Total Film' magazine. The director has always favoured practical effects over VFX (he even blew up a real Boeing 747 for 'Tenet'), so it's no surprise he went the practical route when it came time to film a nuclear weapon explosion.

"I think recreating the Trinity test (the first nuclear weapon detonation, in New Mexico) without the use of computer graphics was a huge challenge to take on," Nolan was quoted as saying by 'Variety'.

"Andrew Jackson -- my visual effects supervisor, I got him on board early on -- was looking at how we could do a lot of the visual elements of the film practically, from representing quantum dynamics and quantum physics to the Trinity test itself, to recreating, with my team, Los Alamos up on a mesa in New Mexico in extraordinary weather, a lot of which was needed for the film, in terms of the very harsh conditions out there -- there were huge practical challenges," Nolan added.

'Variety' adds that Nolan went on to call 'Oppenheimer' a "story of immense scope and scale". He said, "It's one of the most challenging projects I've ever taken on in terms of the scale of it, and in terms of encountering the breadth of Oppenheimer's story. There were big, logistical challenges, big practical challenges."

MESSI WILL CONTINUE TO APPEAR FOR ARGENTINA MUCH AFTER QATAR 2022, HOPES COACH SCALONI

Doha | Agencies

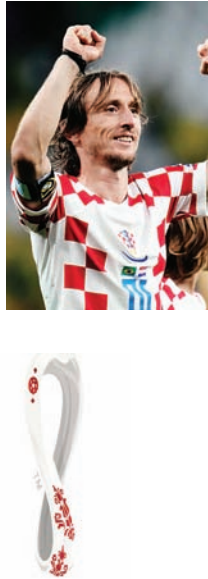

Argentina manager Lionel Scaloni is pinning hopes that Lionel Messi will continue to play for Argentina much after the FIFA World Cup is over.

The Argentinian superstar had announced at the start of the tournament that he will retire from international football after Qatar World Cup but Scaloni feels there will be a change of heart and he will continue.

"We will hope he continues playing. Let's see if he does. We will keep enjoying him, that's important for us and for the world of football."

Argentinian superstar makes us happy. And also because the first year was difficult in terms of adaptation and now, from what they explain to me, their life in Paris is perfect. The children are happy, he and his family, his wife too," Scaloni added. The Argentina captain is eyeing his second World Cup final after his team lost to Germany in 2014 and the only major title missing from his collection, which includes every big club and the national team title. Croatia will be looking to become the first back-to-back finalists since Brazil in 2002.

Coach Dalic wants repeat of 2018 as Croatia eye back-to-back finals

Doha | Agencies

Croatia reaching the final of the FIFA World Cup in Qatar will be "the greatest success in our history," said coach Zlatko Dalic ahead of the semi-final clash with Argentina. "For me, the semi-final match against England (in 2018) was the greatest of all time, and Brazil was second. Tomorrow's match will be the third. To repeat such an achievement (of reaching the final) on the World Cup stage, to win tomorrow, it would make it the greatest game for Croatia of all time," Dalic added. The Croatian side reached the final in Russia in 2018, when they were defeated by France. Croatia defeated Argentina in their group, but Dalic said that will not count much in Tuesday's clash at the Lusail Stadium. "This 2018 match has nothing to do with this match. It is a great match for both countries. The stakes are high for both teams. None of us will spare any effort. I expect a solid, dynamic and fair game from both sides." Dalic added that his team reaching the final four years back served as an inspiration to many smaller countries throughout the football world. Dalic said that there were no real fitness concerns among his squad, despite a gruelling journey so far in Qatar.

Indian Premier League 2023

Player Auction on Dec 23 to begin with batters set

The IPL 2023 Player Auction on December 23 in Kochi will begin with the batters' set which features Indian opener Mayank Agarwal, Kane Williamson and the England pair of Joe Root and Harry Brook while the top all-rounders of modern-day cricket -- Ben Stokes, Sam Curran, Cameron Green -- have been listed in the second set, the league announced on Tuesday. A total of 405 cricketers will go under the hammer during the IPL Player Auction, beginning at 1430 hrs IST.

Team Absolute | New Delhi

Initially, a total of 369 players were shortlisted by 10 teams from the initial list of 991 players. Thereafter, thirty six additional players were requested by teams, which are added into the final list which makes a total of 405 players which will be presented at the IPL 2023 Auction, a media release from the league said. Out of 405 players, 273 are Indians and 132 are overseas players of which four players are from associate nations. The total capped players are 119, uncapped players are 282 and 4 from associate nations. As per the norm, the auction will begin with capped players going under the hammer. The IPL has created the order by breaking up the list into different sets based on the specialisation. The order are: batters, all-rounders, wicketkeeper-batters, fast bowlers and spinners. The same order will be followed for the uncapped players. England skipper Stokes, who has listed his base price at Rs 2 crore, remains a strong contender to bag the most expensive player reward only because he is a proven serial match-winner and gives a captaincy option as well. The franchises will also keep their eye on Aussie all-rounder Green, who has also listed his base price at INR 2 crore. His power-hitting during the white-ball series in India recently made him an instant attraction for IPL teams. Meanwhile, Curran, who was named player of the match for his 3-12 in England's T20 World Cup victory over Pakistan and was also player of the tournament, will also be one of the most sought after players in the auction. The all-rounder has done well for CSK in the previous seasons of IPL.

Last month, franchises had announced the list of their retained and released players and the largest purse (Rs 42.25 crore) for the auction, followed by Punjab (Rs 32.20 crore), Lucknow (Rs 23.35 crore), Mumbai (Rs 20.55 crore), Chennai (Rs 20.45 crore), Delhi (Rs 19.45 crore), Gujarat (Rs 19.25 crore), Rajasthan Royals (Rs 13.2 crore), RCB (Rs 8.75 crore) and KKR (Rs 7.05 crore).

INDIA VS BANGLADESH TEST MATCH

INDIA AIM FOR AGGRESSIVE PLAY AGAINST B'DESH FOR WTC FINAL

Chattogram | Agencies

At a time when the attention of all teams is building up to the ODI World Cup next year, there is another championship before it where qualification for the finals is heating up with every passing week. As India, hit by multiple injuries of late including to captain Rohit Sharma, aim to play aggressive cricket, as said by stand-in skipper K.L. Rahul, against Bangladesh in the Test series opener at Zahur Ahmed Chowdhury Stadium, the race to make it to the WTC final for them also returns in a phase where Test cricket is happening from the sub-continent to the southern hemisphere. The away series defeat to South Africa and losing the Edgbaston Test in England has meant India are in fourth place on the WTC points table. If they are to make it to a second successive WTC final, to be held at The Oval in June 2023, they need to win at least five, if not all six of their remaining Tests, including four against Australia at home in February-March.

This is where the challenge for the Indian team is -- wins and draws will work, but not a loss. 2022 has been a year in which India have won only two out of five Tests played this year -- both those wins came against Sri Lanka at home in March. In Rohit's absence, Rahul will likely open with Shubman Gill, with Cheteshwar Pujara, Virat Kohli, Shreyas Iyer and Rishabh Pant occupying numbers three to six. Axar Patel could be picked to fill the void in Jadeja's absence and pair up with Ravichandran Ashwin for spin-bowling duties. In case India need three spinners, Kuldeep Yadav can add that variety. As far as the fast-bowling department is concerned, Umesh Yadav and Mohammed Siraj will be the first-choice picks, with Shardul Thakur as a possible third choice, though Jaydev Unadkat's left-arm angle could make team management think about taking him. While India are playing Tests after five months, Bangladesh are also returning to the fold after six months. Shakib, their talismanic captain, is having an injury concern after being hit on the ribs in the second ODI against Umran Malik, while Taskin Ahmed is ruled out due to recovery from a back injury. India have never lost to Bangladesh in a Test match and the visitors would want to keep it intact at Chattogram and later in Dhaka to inch closer to sealing a WTC final spot.
